Grade 8 English Language Arts

Written by Brittani Whary

Course Description: The 8th grade Language Arts course helps students become better writers through examination of a variety of authors, including Frost, Poe, Martin Luther King, and Anne Frank. Students will learn to write in the three modes of narrative, informational, and argumentative. They will also study and analyze poetry, as well as write some of their own.

Big Ideas	Essential Questions
------------------	----------------------------

- We write to think.
- We use mentor texts to develop our own writing skills.
- Using the conventions of standard English helps readers understand an author's message.
- There are different modes of writing, and what and how we write is influenced by the mode, task, audience, and purpose.

- What is the purpose of writing?
- What do we write about?
- How do I develop focus and content in my writing?
- How do I read like a writer?
- How do I use proper conventions in my writing? What do great writers do?
- How and why do I distinguish between each mode of writing?

Content	Skills
----------------	---------------

- The five writing domains: focus, content, organization, style, and conventions
- Why writing is important
- What types of things to write about (how about ... how to find topics for writing?)

- Focus writing on a specific topic using the inverted triangle
- Add appropriate details to writing
- Hook a reader with an interesting lead
- Analyze a mentor text
